

Intercultural Communication Between Traders and Buyers in Perbaungan Market

Rita Destiwati

Department of Communication
Faculty of Communication and Business
Universitas Telkom, Bandung, Indonesia
ritadetiwati@gmail.com

Junardi Harahap

Department of Anthropology
Faculty of Social Science and Political Science
Universitas Padjadjaran, Bandung, Indonesia
junardiharahap@gmail.com

Abstract- Human beings are in constant communication, and always do a lot of activities that has everything to do with communication. In the communication process, humans are always in touch with others who have different characters from one to another as well as diverse cultures. And in communicating, people are constantly in touch with other people that mean the ones who come into contact with other people. The problem in this research is how intercultural communication occurs between vendors and buyers. The method used in this study is a qualitative method of interviews and observations. The results showed that the communication that occurs is related to the communication culture of their culture and the cultures they have is communication culture among market traders that becomes sub culture. Sub culture here can be interpreted as parts of a number of terms in the trade. The terms of the culture are later developed to expedite the trade and aimed to achieve the goal of gaining profit in the trade.

Keywords: Communication, Merchants, Intercultural, Sociology, Anthropology And Buyers.

I. INTRODUCTION

The market is a place where communication process takes place to conduct the process of communication that is very concerned about the communication that exists in the market. The market is a process of communication that often even always occurs in a market. The market is an important part of the communication process in the market; communication is an important part in the community that performs the communication process. Communication in behaviors does various things in various communities in the market. Communication in the communication process in the market is an important part that must be considered and addressed in our society. Communication is a significant part done well in the communication. The market is a gathering place in the community where there are many people who do a lot of things that leads to a lot of people who do a lot of things in society.

II. METHOD RESEARCH

The method used in this study is a qualitative method approach using observations and interviews, unquestionably performed by doing research directly in the market to directly observe the things going on in the market.

III. LITERATURE REVIEW

When talking about communication, the literature that covers it is as follows as the views by Darmawan (2013: 247), stating that in buying and selling process, good communication skills are needed to encourage buyers to buy the merchandise traded. It also deals with the culture of consumption as said by Panji (2013: 465) that it is the culture of consumption of the buyer who makes the sales process get good results. Morissan (2013: 173) mentions that cultural process occurs when the selling and buying process takes place. Cangara (2014: 69) argues that personal communication that occurs between the seller and the buyer enables the communication process. Subur (2006: 110) points out that market is required in communication to make it happen to achieve the expected results in communication.

IV. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The market is an area and a region which is very important to do a long process in which the end goal is to gain profit from the buying and selling process. In the market, a number of ways exist to convince people to buy something. Persuasive languages are necessary. The languages used to convince people to buy the merchandise being traded include the following:

Cari apa, Kak!

Untuk siapa, Kak!

Untuk anakku.

Model kayak apa, Kak!

Laki-laki apa perempuan!

Berapa tahun, 5 tahun Kak!

Berapa harganya? 57 ribu

Mahalnya bisakurang tidak...